

Your Privacy

We are committed to the protection of your privacy on DHDC's website and our affiliate website pages. This site does not collect personal information such as names and email addresses unless individuals knowingly provide that information.

Policy on Information Collection

The Blackbaud website collects personal information for membership purchases and renewals, program registrations, electronic newsletters and mailings, and general inquiries as applicable for online donations and purchases. This information is used only for the intended services. For some of these services, the site may request information about background, occupation, demographics, and interests.

The DHDC and affiliate websites automatically collect information about computer hardware and software. This can include IP addresses, browser types, domain names, access times, and the referring websites that visitors use to access this website. The site uses this information to maintain the quality of the service while you are on the website, as well as to collect general statistics about the site.

To review or request changes to personal information please contact the Discovery Center by emailing info@dhdc.org.

Policy on Information Disclosure

We will not sell, trade, or rent personal information. We may compile aggregate statistics and provide them to third parties, but these statistics will not include information that identifies individual website users.

We may save personal information to comply with federal and state policies, but we will not disclose this information to third parties or government agencies unless we are required to do so by state or federal law or we must act under exigent circumstances to protect the safety of our users or the public.

Revisions to the Privacy Policy

The privacy policy may be revised at any time. We may revise the policy in response to changes in the law or other factors. We encourage website users to periodically visit this page to review the most current policy.
